

ICBC threatens bodyshop operators'

foiled by workers

Bank employees cornered a man who had held up the Bank of Montreal, 2 West Hastings, Friday afternoon and held him and the approximately $5,400 he had taken until police arrived.

Police said a man pointed a straight-edged razor at a teller to get the money. But after the bandit left the bank two employees slipped out after him and cornered him in a parking lot at the rear of 211 Carrall. One stood face-to-face with the razor-wielding man while the other called for police assistance.

Charged with armed robbery and possession of a dangerous weapon was Vernon Percy Jones, 34, of Vancouver.

The policy deadlock between the Insurance Corporation of B.C. and the Automotive Retailers Association (ARA) continued Friday — with the ARA claiming that the government corporation is trying to threaten body shop operators into strike-breaking.

ICBC officials simply repeated their earlier assertion that a majority of all body shops had agreed to carry out accident repair and charge car owners only the deductible segment of their insurance until the strike by ICBC employees is settled.

But ARA's executive members met Friday morning and issued a six-point statement saying that the majority of body shops in B.C. will reject any instruction from ICBC "that puts the industry into a possible strike-breaking situation."

"ICBC is putting a lot of pressure on body shop operators," ARA spokesman Ron Baldwin told The Province. "Operators are being told that unless they agree to work under ICBC terms during the strike, they won't get paid."

He said that since the strike against ICBC by the Office and Technical Employees Union (OTEU) includes the corporation's estimators and adjusters, the body shops are being asked in effect to do now what previously was done by those on strike.

"Now there's talk of ICBC bringing in estimators from other provinces," Baldwin added. "The corporation seems bound to break the strike, one way or another. But how can our members be sure that repair work ordered is legitimate and that they will be paid for it eventually by ICBC?"

"All but a few of our members will continue to do only emergency repairs, and this will be done only on a cash basis."

Baldwin said that the relatively few body shops that have agreed to the ICBC terms have done so because the insurance corporation (which operates Autoplan) already owes them money and they are "desperate for cash."

The ARA position received backing from the striking union Friday.

An OTEU statement said: "The union and its members would consider that any body shops which repair vehicles in accordance with the corporation's procedures would be strike-breaking and would be considered as an ally of the corporation under our interpretation of the Labor Code."

"In this event, the union and the employees of ICBC would have no choice but to react accordingly."

This is the text of the ARA statement issued Friday:

"The ARA reaffirms its stand that the body shops will flatly reject any instructions from ICBC that put the industry into a possible strike-breaking situation, and that the latest bulletin from ICBC, dated May 27, is no different from the previous one, and that following out these instructions will only prolong the strike."

"The ARA intends to stand firm on its announced policy of writing no estimates for ICBC during any strike."

The statement further says:

• "That Mr. Bortnick (ICBC general manager Norman Bortnick) was misinformed in his recent press statement that 'the majority of body shops are willing to carry out instructions from ICBC during the strike.' Our information, based on the results of written questionnaires sent to all body shops in the province asking for their opinions shows overwhelming support from both auto dealers and independent body shops for the stated policy of the association."

• "That the body shops will continue to make emergency repairs to damaged vehicles during the strike, but these will have to be done on a cash basis only."

• "That the body shops feel that the corporation should continue to make monthly payments to the body shops for work done, and that the threat implied in the latest ICBC bulletin issued to all vendors is an attempt to place economic pressure on the body shops so that the body shops will enter into a strike-breaking situation."

• "That the bulletin also implies a threat that body shops will have to work for a rate stipulated by the corporation — which has no relationship to the rate actually required by the industry — and that the industry intends to take the advice of its firm of chartered accountants who were commissioned to establish a satisfactory rate."

Bortnick could not be reached for direct comment Friday, but other ICBC spokesmen said owners of damaged vehicles should have little trouble arranging repairs because most body shops have accepted the corporation's instructions.

Spot checks in the Vancouver area by The Province, however, indicated that the body shop operators are instead accepting the policy as stated by the ARA executive.
